Social and Personal

Tall vases of pink flowers, lighted candles and palms decorated the home of Dr. George B. Steel, at 601 Hawthorne Avenue, Ginter Park, last evening for the marriage of his daughter, Elizabeth, to James Sutton Jones, son of Mrs. A. Seiden Jones, also of Richmond. The ceremony, which took place at 6:30 o'clock, was witnessed by only the immediate families of the bride and groom. Rev. London H. Mason, D. D., rector of Christ Episcopal Church, officiated. Additional guests were invited for the reception which was held at 7 o'clock. An orchestra played the wedding music and also during the receiving hours.

The bride descended the stairs with her father, who gave her in marriage. Her wedding gown was fashioned of white crepe de chine, with real lace and chiffon and her tulle veil fell from a cap of lace caught with sprays of orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of bride's roses and lilies of the valley. The two maids of honor, Misses Nancy Coleman Noble and Elizabeth Lee Woodward, were dressed in pale pink satin, with lace and chiffon and carried bouquets of pink chrysanthemums. A Seiden Jones, Jr., was his mother's best man and the groomsmen included Messrs. Samuel Mason and Macon Harris, both of Richmond. The ribbons were held by the small nephew and niece of the bride, George and Elizabeth Rogers.

Mr. and Mrs. Jones have gone North.

for their wedding trip and will later be at home in Johnson City, Tenn. Among the guests from a distance were: Mr. and Mrs. Gardner S. Plumley, of Charleston, W. Va.; Miss Steel, of Washington, and others.

Prominent Engagement.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Walker, of 256 Park Avenue, announce the engagement of their daughter, Nellie Thomas, to Leo Meyer, formerly of New York, but now of Waynesboro. The wedding will be celebrated quietly at the home of the bride's parents on the evening of December 12.

Interesting Affairs.

Mrs. William Archer entertained yesterday afternoon at her home, 505 East Franklin Street, at a bridge luncheon. The affair was given in honor of Miss Martha Purcell, who made her debut last season and the guests included the debutantes of this winter.

Another debutante affair of this week will be given Saturday at the Hermitage Golf Club, when Mrs. Sidney Purcell will entertain. The affair will be held at the home of her daughter, Miss Arabella Hayes Purcell. Again the guest list will include only the season's buds.

When H. J. Jackson has cards out for a tea on Wednesday, November 13, from 4 to 5 o'clock in honor of Miss Lucy Nelson Taliaferro, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Philip D. Taliaferro, who is one of the debutantes of this winter.

Saunders-Quinn

One of the most important social events of the late fall season was the marriage last evening of Miss Jane Saunders, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Reuben C. Quinn, and Edmund Archer Saunders, III, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Saunders, Jr., of this city. The ceremony, which was a brilliant and fashionable affair, was celebrated at 5 o'clock in the First Presbyterian Church, in Lynchburg, in the presence of a large company of invited guests. Rev. James Dunlop Faxon, D. D., officiated. The bride was dressed in white flowers and lighted candles, and the groom in a tuxedo. The ceremony was a most interesting one, and the wedding march was a highlight of the evening.

The bride wore a lovely gown of white crepe de chine with a lace collar and long veil of illusion. She was escorted by her father, who also gave her away. They were met at the church by the bridegroom and his best man, Richard Saunders, of Richmond. Miss Mary Saunders, of this city, a sister of the groom, was maid of honor, and a young girl of the groom's family, a cousin, carried a sheaf of American Beauty roses.

The bridesmaids, Misses Kate Terry, Bertha Dinger, Maude Caskey, Annie Gilliam, Helen Owen, all of Lynchburg, and Miss Marie Fleming of Richmond, were dressed in white crepe de chine, and carried bouquets of American Beauty roses. A large reception at the home of the bride's parents followed the ceremony at the church, and Mr. and Mrs. Saunders left later in the evening for a wedding journey. Some of the guests from a distance attending the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Saunders, Jr., of Richmond; Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Sale, of Welch, W. Va.; Mr. and Mrs. Charles P. Lee, Miss Katherine S. Lee, Miss Dallas C. Lee, L. F. Barnes, all of this city; Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Williams, of Burlington, N. C.; Mrs. E. A. Saunders, of Atlantic City; Mrs. William H. Babcock, of Washington; W. B. Saunders, of Richmond; Mr. and Mrs. S. Saunders, of Shirley; Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Shields, Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Shields, of Lexington, and many others.

To Be Married To-Day.

The wedding of Miss Lois Cannaway Richardson, daughter of Colonel and Mrs. John W. Richardson, and John M. Miller, III, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Miller, was celebrated at 11 o'clock, will be quietly celebrated this morning at 11 o'clock. The ceremony will take place at the home of the bride's parents, 1521 Grove Avenue, and only the nearest relatives and a few intimate friends will be present.

A quiet home wedding, celebrated yesterday morning at 11 o'clock, was that of Miss Edith May Watkins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Haddon Spurgeon Watkins, and Mr. Haddon Dandridge Pitt, son of Rev. and Mrs. R. H. Pitt, of Richmond. The ceremony took place in the home of the bride, 1521 Grove Avenue, and Dr. Pitt, father of the bridegroom, officiated, on the two families and a few intimate friends being present. Decorations were in autumn flowers, palms and Southern smilax.

The bride wore a going-away gown of dark blue cloth with a moiré band of velvet hat, and a corsage bouquet of orchids and lilies of the valley. She was given away by her father, with whom she entered the drawing-room. Miss Louise Haddon Watkins attended and her sister as maid of honor, and was crowned in pale green charmeuse draped with chiffon. Her bouquet was of yellow chrysanthemums. Robert Pitt, brother of the groom, was best man.

Dr. and Mrs. Pitt have gone North for their honeymoon. Some of the out-of-town guests attending the ceremony yesterday morning were Miss Louise Bowman, of Lynchburg; Mrs. M. J. Fuller, Miss Fuller and Mrs. E. T. Roberts, of Newport News.

Invitations for Ten.

Mrs. James Edmundson Cannon and Mrs. James Jamison Hickey have issued invitations for an at-home, to be given at 12 o'clock on Wednesday, November 12, at 328 Park Avenue. It will be a very interesting function, and invitations include the married set here.

Light refreshment at the Arts and Crafts shop will be held to-day from 10 in the morning until 5 o'clock this evening. Receiving the callers will be Miss Caroline Coleman, Mrs. J. T. Harris, Miss Pauline Powers, and Miss Nora Randolph. All decorations will be in autumn leaves and fall flowers. Light refreshments will be served in the tea room, which has been attractively arranged with old English turquoises.

Miss Bragg's Story Talks.

Teachers, teachers and children of Richmond are looking forward to the coming of Miss Mabel Bragg, who will give a series of talks about stories and how to tell them at the Y. M. C. A. auditorium November 17 and 18. Miss Bragg has a charming personality, and will delight her audience with her art of story-telling. Her art is almost as old as the human race, but the new realization of its educational value makes the coming of such an artist as Miss Bragg especially interesting. Miss Bragg comes under the auspices of the Richmond Kindergarten Association.

Berkeley-Hobson.

Richmond society is deeply interested in the wedding of Miss Mary Louise Berkeley, daughter of Mrs. Berkeley and the late Edmund Berkeley, who for many years was an official of the Southern Railway and Air Line Railways, to the Rev. Jennings Cropper Wise Hobson, which took place last evening at 7 o'clock in the memorial chapel of the Church of the Holy Communion, Philadelphia. The bride was crowned with yellow and white chrysanthemums and palms. Mrs. Paul Seydel, of New York, was maid of honor. Rev. W. Taylor Willis, of Virginia, acted as best man, and the ceremony was performed by the Rev. Alfred Rives Berkeley, a brother of the bride and vicar of the Church of the Holy Communion. The bride was crowned in white embroidered charmeuse, trimmed in old point lace, and her tulle veil was arranged with orange blossoms.

Both bride and groom belong to distinguished and well-known families. Mrs. Hobson is a granddaughter of Colonel Edmund Berkeley, of Haymarket, and formerly lived in Richmond, before moving to Atlanta. The groom is a graduate of the Virginia Military Institute, and the Virginia Theological Seminary. He is a grandson of Governor Henry A. Wise, of Virginia, and is widely related throughout the State.

Meeting To-Morrow.

The Junior Hollywood Memorial Association will meet to-morrow morning at 11 o'clock in Lee Camp Hall. The meeting is a very important one and all members of the association are urged to be present.

Recital for Pine Camp.

"Illustrated Song and Costume Recital" is the title of the entertainment which will be given for Pine Camp by the Women's Club of Ginter Park to-morrow evening at 8 o'clock in the assembly hall of that suburb. The program is a very attractive arrangement, and is in charge of Mrs. Norman Cannon, of Lynchburg.

Daughters of 1812 to Meet.

Plans for the coming State conference will be made to-morrow afternoon at the meeting of the Daughters of 1812, which will be held at the home of Mrs. Leroy E. Brown.

In and Out of Town.

Miss Roberta Wellford, of the University of Virginia, is the guest of Mrs. Nannie Winston at the Chestnut for a few days.

Mrs. C. J. Faulkner and Miss Alice Faulkner, of Boynton, are visiting Mrs. Wm. Northrup at "Norcroft," near Forest Hill.

Mrs. Schultz, of Pennsylvania, who has just returned from a trip around the world, is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas L. Moore at "Mooreland Farm."

Miss Elizabeth Clemmer, of Middlebrook, is visiting relatives in this city.

Mrs. E. T. Brady, of Roanoke, is spending this week with relatives in Richmond.

Mrs. James Keith Summers, of Lawrence Park, Va., is visiting Mrs. Ernest A. Kendler, of 105 North Allen Avenue.

Lyle-Williamson.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]

Martinsville, Va., November 5.—Dr. Walter L. Lyle, a druggist and business man, here, and Miss Essie Bernard Williamson, of Martinsville, were married at the Christian Church, here, at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon, in the presence of a large and fashionable congregation.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Gerald Calhoun, pastor of the church, assisted by Dr. J. P. McCabe, of the church on the arm of the pastor. Dr. Williamson, who gave her away, and was met by the groom and his attendant, Miss Wilfred Burnett, of Roanoke, presided at the organ, rendering the "Lohengrin" wedding march upon the entry of the bride and her attendants.

Immediately after the ceremony, Dr. and Mrs. Lyle were driven to the Norfolk and Western station, where they took the train for a tour, which will include visits to several other Northern cities. Upon their return they will make their home in Bedford City, where the groom is extensively engaged in business.

Among the guests from a distance were Miss Lyle, of Bedford City; Mrs. Beckwith, of Bristol; Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Fox and Jason Williamson, of Roanoke.

Just enough to carry off the perspiration of the body and avoid the clammy effect common to all garments made exclusively of cotton. Dr. Denton's Sleeping Garments positively will not scratch. They completely cover the little one and prevent the chilling of the body and limbs, so easy during the night hours, when the circulation is low. Every mother should dress her children in Dr. Denton's Sleeping Garments, and she will spend no more restless nights sleeping with one eye open to keep her dear ones constantly covered. Size one to six years for the boy, 55c to 80c; one to six years for the girl, 65c to 90c.

KING PETER OF SERBIA BENEFITED BY WAR

Emerges From Conflict Rehabilitated in Eyes of His Subjects.

BY LA MARQUINE DE DONTENOV.

No one has derived a greater amount of benefit from the war in the Balkans than King Peter of Serbia. Although he performed no act of personal heroism, and did not even assume the active leadership of his troops on the battlefield, yet he has emerged from the conflict, rehabilitated in the eyes of his subjects and to a great extent of foreign nations.

Whereas, up to the time of the commencement of hostilities, his throne had remained in a tottering condition, and his crown was in jeopardy, he has now prepared to resume at an hour's notice the weary path of exile, to-day his position is consolidated, and quite as safe, at any rate, as that of any other sovereign in the Southeast of Europe. Had Serbia been defeated, he would undoubtedly have been deposed, or assassinated like his predecessor, the ill-fated Alexander. But since Serbia has been victorious, all doubting the extent of her territory, and opening up access to the two seas, the Adriatic and Aegean, the Karageorgievitch dynasty may be regarded as having obtained a firm hold upon the crown.

Crown Prince Alexander, too, has emerged from the war, winning golden opinions. He did not interfere with the commanding general, but was always in the front, wholly regardless of danger, and was playing a most remarkable role for the wounded and the sick. Indeed, he has, from a Serbian point of view, become the most popular figure of the campaign.

Prior to the war Serbia was torn asunder by rival factions. There was the party of the murdered King Alexander, while the foes of the Obrenovitch regime were divided into the pro-regime and anti-regime parties. The latter calling upon King Peter to displace his son, and from their posts in the army, and in the government administration, all officers implicated in the Obrenovitch regime were no longer to be trusted. The question has, by common consent, been buried, while the adherents of the late King have come to the conclusion that, after all, the dynasty of Obrenovitch has become extinct, save in the person of the widowed Queen Natalie, now a terribly obese, prematurely aged woman, and that, moreover, it is under the Karageorgievitches that the Serbian army has been led to victory instead of to defeat, as under King Milan.

Undoubtedly, the marriage of King Peter's daughter, Helen, to a prince of the reigning house of Russia has given the Karageorgievitch dynasty a prestige in the Balkans which it never previously enjoyed, and has won for it, for the first time, a recognized place among the reigning families of Europe. It may be recalled that neither King Milan nor King Alexander was able to effect a matrimonial alliance with any of the daughters of the sovereign houses of Europe, and they were compelled in consequence to marry women who did not even belong to the aristocracy. The return of Helen to Serbia was matrimonially boycotted. With the marriage of King Peter's daughter, Princess Helen, this boycott has ceased, and at an early date we may expect to hear of the marriage of the Crown Prince of Serbia to some royal or imperial princess.

A fact to be noted in connection with the recent war is that none of the regular officers managed to win any special distinction, which, of course, admits now of their now being relegated to the background by those officers who won fame and honor by their leadership and their gallantry. Nor have any of the titled and untitled members of King Peter's family come to the front in the conflict, or won any laurels, save the present crown prince. The ex-crown prince is said to have done creditably. But nothing much has been heard of him during the fray, and he is once more living abroad.

Lord Waterman, who has just amazed his relatives and friends by unexpectedly marrying, at the age of sixty-four, a Mrs. Grant, is better known by his former name and title of Sir William Walrond, which he bore for a quarter of a century in the House of Commons, and as a member of Lord Salisbury's first cabinet, in which he held the chairmanship of the duty of Lancaster. Lord Waterman was so devoted to his first wife, a great heiress, and who died barely eighteen months ago, that to one ever dreamt that he would marry again. In taking the title of Lord Waterman, on his elevation to peerage, in 1905, he merely reverted to the old-time pronunciation and spelling of the name of his very ancient family. The latter has been in uninterrupted possession of its Bradfield property in Devonshire for 800 years, that is to say, ever since it was transferred by deed from Fulke Paynel, Lord of Bradfield, to Richard de Valerian, in the reign of King John, the original deed being still in existence. The mansion at Bradfield is a grand old place, which has been repeatedly restored and brought up to date, in point of comfort and modern luxury, without any interference with picturesqueness or architectural merit.

The feature of the house is beyond all question the great hall, with its vaulted oak roof, its splendid maples, paneling and its huge open fireplace. At its further end is the minstrel gallery, and just off this gallery is the state bedroom, which has sheltered the slumbers of many an old-time King and Queen of England.

Of recent years Lord Waterman has turned over the Bradfield property to his eldest son, the Hon. Lionel Walrond, who has succeeded him in the House of Commons as representative of the Tiverton Division of Devonshire. Lord Waterman now divides his time between his beautiful villa at Nise, and his London home in Hans Place. He formerly served in the Grenadier Guards, but left the army on his first marriage, to devote himself to politics and to the management of the extensive property of his first wife.
